"MUD" FOLEY ARRAIGNED.

He is Sent to the Tombs to Await Trial for the Murder of Carney.

Coroner Levy this morning committed John F. Foley, of 553 West Twenty-sixth street, otherwise known as "Mud" Foley, to the Tombs, to await trial on a charge of killing Denis Carney on Dec. 24, 1886, age seven-Martin Curlee, of 542 West Twenty-seventh street, and John Murphy, eighteen years old, of 457 West Twenty-seventh street, were sent to the House of Detention as witnesses.

Foley and Carney were both sneak thiever about sixteen years old. On the night in question they had stolen a can of pears.

They quarrelled over the division of the booty; words led to blows, and Foley stabbed Carney through the heart.

Foley was arrested, but there was not sufficient evidence to hold him, and he was therefore discharged.

Soon afterwards, however, he was sent to the Island for six months, for stealing, by Justice Duffy.

the Island for six months, for stealing, by Justice Duffy.

During the past year Detectives Murray and Vallely, of Inspector Byrnes's staff, have been working on the case. Last night they had Foley, the murderer, Curlee and Murphy locked up at Headquarters.

Foley confessed bis crime to Inspector Byrnes, and the witnesses told their story.

The youthful murderer has a bad record. He belongs to a gang of sneak thieves that haunt Eleventh ayenue and Twenty-seventh street.

He served two years in the workhouse be-fore the murder, and was sent up on the isl-and for six months a short time ago for petit and for six months a short time ago for pear larceny.

When the Coroner committed the boys
Foley was the least disturbed. He speaks calmly of the affair and alleges that Carney drew a knifs on him.

His father is a hard man. His mother died while he was in the work house. At the island he got into a row with one of the prisoners and drew a penknife on him. Keeper Hines gives him a bad character. He was transferred to Hart's Island soon after the quarrel.

or the capital cases. This delay, however, will not be of long duration and the occupants of "Murderers' Row" in the Tombs will be soon granted the privilege of meeting a judge and jury.

All of the murder cases have been handed over to Deputy Assistant Andrew D. Parker, who is the chief of the new trial bureau, and he will personally examine and prepare the briefs in each, while the cases of a minor character will be assigned by him to other deputies.

character will be assigned by him to other deputies.

The first case which he will consider is that of Longobardi, the Italian slayer of Johnny Barrett. This case will be tried by Col. Fellows personally, assisted by Mr. Parker. It was set down in the Court of Oyer and Terminer for next Monday, but will be returned to the Court of General Sessions and tried before Recorder Smyth.

With this disposition of the Longobardi case there will be no day calendar in the Oyer and Terminer, and it is quite probable that that Court will adjourn over the month. It will be impossible to move a retrial of Jacob Sharp, District-Attorney Fellows says, until Mr. Semple shall have disposed of the other boodle cases of O'Neill' and McQuade in the Court of Appeals and the General Term respectively.

Traders Have It All to Themselves-A Mod erate Advance in Prices.

'Up to noon to-day, 55,000 shares of stock changed hands, which is the poorest showing yet made by the Stock Exchange. The traders had everything to themselves, and, having been of a bullish turn of mind, prices were advanced 1/2 to 3/2 all along the line.

A despatch from Chicago says that there are five private stock wires between that city and New York, as against fourteen a year ago. This in itself speaks volumes and accounts for the shrinkage in the price of Stock Exchange memberships to $18,000.

Money is flowing this way pretty freely now and the banks are in a stronger position than for some time. The buying of bends for out-of-town account is bringing considerable capital into the street and the brokers have difficulty in securing more than 5½ per cent, for money even on time. The rates on call this morning were 4½ a 5 per cent.

In London consols are higher again to-day at 103½, presumably on the talk about an intended conversion of a part of the debt into 2½ per cents. United States 4s and 4½ s also moved up ½, but American railway securities as a rule were easier. Wheat.—Although the London cable was weak this morning, the buils in wheat took hold of the market and secured a slight advance in prices. The market opened for the May option at 35%, and good buying orders, principally from Wall street, put prices up ½c. within the first hour. The Clicago market was also firmer. In corn and cats little was doing.

Corrow.—There was a lively switching market in cotton this morning and 18,000 bales were sold on the opening call at Jan., 10.58; Feb., 10.49; March. (6.6); April, 10.70; May, 10.50; June, 10.50; July, 10.80; August, 11. There was an advance of 1 to 2 points just after the call, but this was soon lost and the market became steady at a decline of 1 point on the near months and an advance of 1 point in far months as compared with last night's close.

Corpus.—Futures had a rably this morning on better cables, and the opening prices, showing an advance of 15 points as compared with last night's closing figures, were as follows: Jan., 18.75; Feb., 18.50; March, 16.40; April, 18.50; May, 16.20; June, 15.25; Aug., 14.45. The Havre market was firm at an advance of ½ franc in the futures.

Permoleum.—After the break of nearty 5 points in oil yestorday there was a natural reaction today. The opening brice was 92% a 92%, about yesterday's closing figure, but the market was soon put up to 93%, where it remained for some time. Just before noon there was another flury and up the price went to 94%. Apparently a big business was being done, but close observers say that nnetenths of it was laundried. It is claimed that a few big men on the floor wash the market up and down whenever they please and the little speculators nave no chance. Only a few gudgeons were captured by the clique in yesterday's onalaught.

MORE LETTERS TO "BUNNIE."

MILLIONAIRE ARBUCKLE'S TENDER EFFU SIONS READ IN COURT.

Miss Campbell Says That He Slezed the Cor respondence, but She Had Taken Copies Reproaches for Postponing the Marriage -Mr. Arbuckle's Sister Objected to the Engagement-Under Cross-Examination.

The trial of the suit of Miss Clara Camp bell against Charles Arbuckle, the wholesale coffee merchant and millionaire, for breach of promise of marriage was continued before Justice Beach in Part IV. of the Supreme Court to-day.

MISS CAMPBELL ON THE STAND

When Miss Campbell appeared in court to-day her stylish attire was almost hidden by a fine plush coat. On her head was a little bonnet of bright blue velvet. She was accompanied by two female friends.

She resumed the witness-stand this morning and identified several letters which ex-Judge Fullerton read. They were from Mr. Arbuckle and were couched in the softest, most endearing terms. During their reading the plaintiff's face were an extremely businessities expression.

The letters from Mr. Arbuckle to "Bunnie" were full of terms of endearment, but in each was some unfavorable comment on her taste for "stagey" people, for riding in the front seats of cars, and for acting more like a man than a woman. In one letter he complains that her notes are too short and says:

Says:
On, Bunnie! If I could only rest my head in your lap and have a good cry! The defendant arrived in court late, and Miss Campbell's female support glared upon

On an objection by Mr. Parsons to a question as to preparations by her for the wedding, a letter dated Nov. 1, 1883, was read. In it she complained to her affianced that he had at first said that the marriage should be in May, 1883; then in the fall, and that now he put it off till January of the new year. Then Miss Campbell continued:

Mr. Arbuckle said we were to be married as soon as his brother returned home from Europe. I informed my father of our approaching marriage and my stater superintended the preparations for the wedding. These preparations were in the fail of isse.

Mr. Parsons cross-examined. Miss Campbell explained that "4-1-11 P-87" in pencil in a letter from Mr. Arbuckle to her meant that it was postmarked April 1 at 11 P. M. and was No. 87 of his letters to her.

A reporter's note-book of about two hundred pages was placed in the hands of the witness. It was written full and contained copies of the letters from Mr. Arbuckle to her. It was prepared in November or December, 1884, after her suit for breach of promise was begun.

Mr. Parsons was anxious to know why, when Miss Campbell copied all the rest of Mr. Arbuckle's letters, she did not copy one written on March 12, 1884. at Alleghany City, Pa. She replied that it must have been mislaid.

Mr. Parsons—What did he say in that letter? A. By my an wer he must have said he was better.
Q. Is it not a fact that during his libess you had so aggravated him that he was obliged to go to his relatives in Alleghany City in order to get well?

A. I don't know.

Q. Did you not, after writing a letter on March 9 and another registered letter on March 4t, come on to New York to see him and find out why he did not reply.

A. Yes, 817.

Q. Had not Mr. Arbuckle told you that he could not in his state of health marry you or any other woman?

A. No, sir.

Q. What siled him.

Q. You didn't believe him? A. I believed he thought he had mataria, but I thought he had broachtal and throat troubles.

Q. When did you think to commence this suit?

A. When Mr. Ar-anchie sent me $500. I thought I enget not to accept that money till I consulted somebody. That was in December, 1882. I consulted wells A. Hutchins, at Portsmouth, near Ironton, in March, 1884.

Q. Did you inform Mr. Arbuckie then that you were about to begin suit? A. No.

Q. When did you see lawyers in New York? A.

In April, 1884. It was in November or December that I asked Mr. Arbuckle to fix the date for our marriage, and the offer of $500 followed that.

Miss Campbell could not remember the letters were locked in her trunk securely. Q. Well, but did he not complain? A. He did, but it was not true. That was after I came home from Washington, after Easter, 1883.

Q. Did he not say something about the truth being tied up with a cord? A. I don't remember.

Miss Campbell acknowledged that after she had consulted Mr. Hutchins she received two letters from Mr. Arbuckle, in which he said he was still sick in bed, and that she made no effort to see him after receiving these letters.

Mr. Parsons asked if he had ever received these statements from Mr. Arbuckle. The question was put with a view of showing that they had been put into her letter by Lawyer Hutchins. The letter wound up "with kisses, love, as ever your affectionate Bunnia."

Miss Campbell replied that the lawyer had nothing to do with the letter. At this time Mr. Hutchins had only to do with settling up her father's estate. She consulted him later because she wanted guidance. She wanted to know what Mr. Arbuckle was beaut about.

A letter to Mr. Hutchins in which she expressed fear that Mr. Arbuckle would die, was read, and a laugh was raised by Miss Campbell's statement that she was anxious because Mr. Arbuckle had said he was so sick. Shortly after the receipt of Mr. Arbuckle's letter of April 1, 1884, in which he said he had walked three blocks the day before and had been compelled to keep his couch ever since, you visited New York lawyers to begin this suit?

Mr. Parsons asked the question in a tone

Mr. Parsons asked the question in a tone which seemed to imply a suspicion that in fear that Mr. Arbuckle would die, Miss Campbell had sued for the cash. Miss Campbell answered affirmatively, quite innocent of the idea the question carried.

O. Then, so farms you know that the idea the question carried.

Q. Then, so far as you knew, when you sued him Mr. Arbuckle was at Alleghany City, sick in bed? A. Yes, sir. He returned to this city, so I was told, before the papers were served on aim, in June.

Q. Now, Miss Campbell, if you possess any letter prior to June in which he refuses to marry you I wish you would produce it.

Miss Campbell confessed that she had no such letter, but ex.-Judge Fulterton insisted that Mr. Arbuckle's silence implied a refusal.

Mr. Parsons was thus spoiled of his attempt to show that the red-fasced defendant had never refused to marry the fat, fair and forty plaintiff, and the injured lady looked demurely triumphant, although the tip of her rather prominent nose had grown very red and there was was a "hectic flush" on her ample cheeks, caused by the rigor of the cross-examination. cross-examination.

Mr. Parsons brought out the fact that Mr. Arbuckle had written a letter and telegraphed twice from his sick bed on the same day, March 12, 1884, while she was contemplating a suit against him for breach of promise. An attempt to show that the check from Mr. Arbuckle sor $500 was sent to Miss Campbell immediately on receipt of intelligence that her father had made an assignment, brought out the fact that the check came in the third letter after the assignment. Miss Campbell finally used the check before she left for New York.

Mr. Parsons—Then you used that money to come

Mr. Parsons—Then you used that money to come to New York to begin this suit against the giver?

A. I did not. I came to New York supposing Mr. Arbuckle was here to try and settle when we were going to be married. That was March 10. After his letter of April 1. I stopped thinking of him.

Q. Is it not a fact that w thout waiting for Mr. Arbuckle's return to New York, you visited your lawyers and commenced this suit?

Miss Campbell answered solemnly and argumentatively, "You must remember I had waited two years on his repeated promise to come to Ohio and marry me." se very nicely. Miss Fnow.

Q. So you did use it to come to New York and sue him for breach of promise? A. I don't think you sak questions right. (Laughter.)

Mr. Parsona—Perhaps not as you would like to have them, but please answer them. Did you? A. I accepted the money with a view to buying my wedding clothes and preparing for our marriage. At this point a recess was taken.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5 .- President Corbin, of the Reading Railroad Company, was clos eted for a long while with General Manager McLeod this morning, and the supposition was that the circular which it was currently rumored would be sent to the miners to-day, offering a proposition to compromise, was in course of preparation.

Later, however, Mr. McLeod stated that after due deliberation it had been decided not to issue the circular that was contemplated and that no action would be taken in the matter to-day. He declined to state what was the tenor of

The company, he claims, has ac'ed in good faith all along, but that the miners have not kept up to their agreement. No word has been received from Mr. Corbin. The latest news received in this city from the miners is to the effect that many of the men are returning to work sgainst the orders of the leaders.

Timothy Putnam said to-day that there was no truth in the report that the coal-handlers and the 'longshoremen here would go on strike to sustain the Reading men.

"If there is no coal to handle," said he, "there will be no necessity for a strike. The men will not have any work to do."

EXCITED THEATRE-GOERS,

Audience at the Roumania Theatre Nearly Come to Blows. The stock company that played " Moses in Egypt" at the Roumania Theatre, on the Bowery, was dismissed by Manager Levy a week ago and another company was employed instead.

The patrons of the house were equally divided on the matter, and the theatre has been crowded nightly by the opposing factions. On one side of the house the actors would be received with applause and on the other side ast night both sides became very demor

Workmen Keep the Bridge.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.] PATERSON, Jan. 5.-Men from the Passal Rolling mill have been working to-day to Rolling mill have been working to-day to save the Wesel bridge, which connects Market street, Paterson, with the Wesel rold, Bergen County. A temporary wooden structure has been built upon the ruined stone piler, which was out off by the roaring water as a cannon ball fired through the masonary would have done.

The bridge sank two feet, and no doubt it would have gone entirely but for the efforts of the rolling-mill men last night. Great cakes of ice are crunching against one another above the bridge, and when they come through the workmen stop to guide them with long poles, so that no more damage may County Democracy Celebration.

TEMPERANCE BITTERS MADE OF WHISKEY. Western New York Prohibitionists Will B Obliged to Find a New Drink.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.] CANANDAIGUA, Jan. 5 .- Western New York Prohibitionists who have for sixteen years been in the habit of drinking Allomania Root Bitters without doubt will be compelled to substitute something else for it hereafter. W. C. Lutz, of Seneca Falls, who has for more than a decade and a half furnished this delightful beverage to the cold-water men, has fallen into the clutches of the Government detectives and has been held by United States Commissioner Adams for trial at the states Commissioner Adams for trial at the next term of court for running an illicit distillery.

Lutz was lately visited by Government Detective Bennett, who, under the protext of purchasing the receipt for the celebrated temperance drink, secured valuable criminating evidence against him.

After procuring positive proof Bennett took his man before Commissioner Adams. Lutz testified that he had manufactured a concoction called Allomania Root Bitters in Seneca Falls for sixteen years, and that its components were whiskey, peppermint, oil of anise and syrup, whiskey being the principal ingredient. He advertised it as a great temperance drink, and said that temperance men who once tried it always kept it on hand.

He admits having a still on his premises, but claims not to have used it for two years.

National Bank on Jan. 10, principally because a successor to Mr. Manning, its late President, will have to be chosen.
From Mr. Canda himself, however, no information on this point was obtainable, as he positively declined to see any one connected with the press, and Conrad Jordan declines to make any predictions saying,
"The election will not be held until the 10th, and it is hard to say in advance what will be done."
